Jump to: Be the first to add a certification In this historical epic based on real events, Chris Pine reunites with his "Hell or High Water" director David Mackenzie. So I had no idea what this was going to be about, but the movie works even without any previous knowledge. Actually even if you haven't seen Braveheart, you will get thrown into circumstances that you will get very quickly. Maybe not have seen Braveheart works better for some, because they won't compare the two movies, no matter when they play time wise in History. Having said all that, Chris Pine is really relishing in a role that is quite difficult to pull off. He has to be tough yet show a "softer" side too. Especially when it comes to his wife. Now how much of this is accurate, I can't tell, because I'm not read up on the details of what actually happened. I'm guessing that the bigger events/fights are more or less accurate. There is blood, there is a bit of nudity and there is a lot of fighting with swords ... if that sounds like "fun" to you, the movie will be entertaining. And you will also learn a little bit of actual history The parents' guide to what's in this movie. Products & Purchases Not present Drinking, Drugs & Smoking Not present Parents need to know that Outlaw King takes place in the early 14th century when Scotland was battling England for independence. Immediately after the historical events depicted in Braveheart, the Scots united behind a new leader, determined to liberate their country from the oppression and tyranny of England's king. Violence is frequent and brutal. Multiple battles find hundreds of men in fierce battle using swords, spears, knives, fire, and hand-to-hand savagery. The scenes are bloody and gruesome, with mountains of bodies strewn across muddy, blood-soaked fields. Horses fall in vast numbers, some of them with bloody wounds. (Note: End credits announce that no animals were harmed during the making of the film.) A man is hanged, sliced, with his innards emerging. A rival is stabbed in close-up, the knife thrust into his body until he dies in his murderer's arms. One intimate scene shows a married couple engaged in sex and includes partial nudity: breasts and buttocks. There's a brief glimpse of male frontal nudity as the hero emerges from a pond. Infrequent profanity includes "bastards," "pr-k," "hell," and "arsehole," and one use of "f-k." Mature teens only. October 2, 2020 July 25, 2020 Why oh why do movie producers keep doing this! A movie with good potential but unfortunately the producers and directors force in gratuitous graphic violence and nudity. The only solution is to ask the movie studio owners to instruct their movie producers and directors to cut out the gratuitous violence and nudity or lose the job. Another solution is to have two versions of the movie, WGVN (with gratuitous violence and/or nudity) and WOGVN (without gratuitous violence and/or nudity). Don't tell me it can't be done, high quality movies were made for many decades without the gratuitous violence and nudity of some of today's movies. This title has: In the first years of the 14th century, a time of turmoil and savage territorial hostilities, a young Scottish aristocrat, Robert the Bruce (Chris Pine), emerged as a valiant and courageous leader in OUTLAW KING. William Wallace, the hero in Braveheart, who had boldly fought King Edward of England (Stephen Dillane), had been vanquished, leading to an uneasy truce with the British. But soon, the Scots found themselves once again oppressed and vilified. Rivalries within the ranks of Scottish leaders kept them at odds and ineffective until Robert, with only a few stalwart followers, asserted his leadership in a new fight for independence. Early efforts to gain support from their compatriots, though often violent and harsh, ultimately led to a ragtag army of Scottish allies. Still, they were outnumbered and ill-equipped to battle the powerful enemy led by the Prince of Wales (Billy Howle) and Aymer de Valence (Sam Spruell). A number of harrowing defeats only served to inspire the Scots. Cunning and passion became the force's most significant assets as they met the enemy at the thunderous Battle of Loudon Hill in 1307, a turning point in a war that seemed destined to fail. Director David Mackenzie's wonderfully staged battle scenes and stirring story of unexpected victory will appeal to those who don't mind gruesome violence along with their authentic historical drama. Cinematography, editing, and most of the performances are first-rate, as well. Chris Pine does a fine job of suppressing his movie star good looks with an often blood-soaked patina of courage and smarts, and even a bit of ruthlessness. The romance that evolves in an arranged political marriage is as sweet as it is sometimes fraught with peril. Outlaw King is long, with lots of characters to remember, sometimes repetitive battles, and a few one-dimensional players whose depravity or lunacy seem arch or formulaic. As a "sequel" of sorts to Braveheart, the movie's creators must have known that the violence quotient had to be high, and they've accomplished that. Still, after an individual is hanged and quartered, do we have to stay fixed on the shot long enough to watch his innards descend? Not for kids. Families can talk about the violence in Outlaw King. What emotions do you think the filmmakers were trying to elicit when they made the battle scenes so graphic and gory? Did your view of Robert the Bruce change after he killed John Comyn? Why or why not? Why is it important to be aware of the impact of violence on kids? How did the filmmakers choose to portray Elizabeth (Florence Pugh), Robert's wife? In what ways did her behavior reflect a more modern female? How did Robert's treatment of her make him even more sympathetic? Scotland's fight for independence took place over centuries. As recently as 2014, the Scots had a ballot referendum on becoming an independent country, which was defeated. Where would you go to learn more about the animosity between Scotland and the United Kingdom? Great acting, and a really good film December 10, 2018 Outlaw King is a depiction of a guerilla war between English army and Scotland king Robert the Bruce in the 14th century. This movie has graphic violent scenes which might not be suitable kids. However, if you are up for some historic warfare and tactics, you are going to love this... This title has: November 21, 2018 WE, and in we I mean the whole fam (6 yr old daughter Patrice, 12 yr old Ian and us two Moms), just adored this kid friendly film. We think it is so important for our young kiddos to learn self defense. The sex scene was a little too steamy for the youngsters, but no worries, we fast forwarded!! Thanks Netflix for sharing! This title has: November 13, 2018 This is a brilliant movie. If it wasn't for the sex scene I alike say it would be suitable for 12/13 plus. It is one of the most true to actual history films I have seen in a long time. It is very gory so as long as older teens can handle gore they should be OK. " Historical drama set in the early 14th century inspired by the rebellion of Scottish nobleman Robert the Bruce (Chris Pine) against the English crown. Vastly outnumbered, the Scots use guerilla tactics to take back their land and crown Robert king. Also with Florence Pugh, Stephen Dillane, Rebecca Robin, Billy Howle, Sam Spruell, Aaron Taylor-Johnson and Callan Mulvey. Directed by David Mackenzie. (Running Time: 2:01) - A husband and his wife touch hands tenderly, they go together to a tent where they disrobe (we see her bare breasts and back to the upper buttocks and his chest, abdomen to the hip and buttocks), they kiss and he lays her on a bed where he thrusts and they moan (we see his heavily shadowed crotch without any detail). A fully nude man stands up in a body of water and we see his bare chest, abdomen, and briefly his genitals. ► A woman is grabbed by a soldier and her dress is ripped open in front revealing her bare breasts and subsequent rape is implied. ► A husband and his wife kiss and hug. A woman slaps a man hard in the face before they embrace and kiss. A man kisses another man on the mouth as a joke. A newly married couple is escorted to their bed chamber by a priest and a prayer is recited; the two are then left in the room together where they talk and the man leaves to sleep in a neighboring room. A man promises the hand of a man's daughter to another man. A man touches a woman's face tenderly before threatening her. ► A man makes a crude sexual remark as he thrusts a burning candle into the neck of a severed pig's head. A man teases after a betrothal announcement that the two fathers should kiss. A man and a woman make remarks about the length of time a couple was in a bed room together. - Armed men enter a castle's grounds and demand information and one man is questioned and taken to the gate where his is hanged by a rope and as he's choking a knife is thrust into his chest, pulled down to his abdomen and he's disemboweled (we see blood and intestines pour from the man's abdomen); another man's throat is slashed (we see blood pour). ► In an extended scene many men on horseback charge a smaller group of men on foot and as they charge they fall into a pit with spikes that impale the horses (we hear horses squealing) and men and we see a lot of blood spraying; more and more men and horses fall on the spikes and die as others fight with swords and knives (we see a man struck as we hear crunch and grunting and see blood spraying); other men and horses circle around and get caught in bogs and we see the horses topple and the men get stuck in the thick mud but fighting continues with a teen boy being stabbed with a spear through the chest (we see blood on his face and mouth) and two men fight with heavy swords and one falls (he spits, vomits blood and goo but is not killed). Flaming arrows are launched into a camp at night and we see people struck and catching on fire; men on foot enter the camp and they fight with swords and hatchets and many men are shown dead with bloody wounds later. ► A man stabs another man in the throat after a brief argument (we hear a crunch and we see blood in the man's mouth and abdomen). Men fight at the edge of a lake where they slash with swords and axes; men are held under water, one man's throat is slit (blood gushes), and a man is struck with a thrown spear in the chest (we see blood on his wound as he dies and blood seeps in the water when he is pushed off a boat). Several battle sequences take place when armies attack villages and castles (we see fires burning and commotion as well as men fighting with swords as we hear crunching and thuds). Men on horseback charge toward a castle and threaten to attack unless they are told where a woman and a child are; they fire flaming arrows into the castle and enter. A few men sneak into a castle and attack men with knives and swords; then open the gates and many armed men pour in fighting and we see bloody wounds and hear crunching and slashing until they burn the remains of the castle and leave. Men enter a church and leave their swords at the door; inside one man stabs another man through the back of the neck with a knife and blood sprays as other men with swords attack and kill many others (we see blood and hear crunching). Men on horseback enter a village and we hear people yelling and screaming; we see a severed arm and partial chest hung from a statue and understand that a man has been killed; many townspeople surround the horses and yell and they are struck down by swords (we see some blood) and one man stabs a horse (we see the bloody belly wound) and then its rider in the throat (we see blood gush). A man tells men to throw other men into a well (we hear yelling and splashing off-screen). ► A woman is grabbed by a soldier and her dress is ripped open in front revealing her bare breasts and subsequent rape is implied. Men on horseback ride into a village and one grabs a young teen boy as the boy's mother protests and bites the guard hand; another woman yells for the guard to let the boy go and he does. A man challenges another man to a duel and they fight with heavy swords (no injuries are shown after the fight ends). A man grabs another man by the throat and tells him to get back to the kitchen. A man calls for all men who resist to be murdered without trial. A woman and a child are locked in a cell. A nun takes a child away from a woman as the child kicks and cries. A man threatens to castrate another man if he goes near his daughter again. A man grabs a woman's head and yells at her when she laughs at him. A woman is placed in a cage and hung over a castle wall and left there. ► A woman slaps a man hard in the face (please see the Sex/Nudity category for more details). A man kneels to a king, who squeezes his hands as he pledges his fealty. A man chides his son in several scenes. Several men argue about their course of action and one man yells for them to stop. We hear that a man's wife died in childbirth. Clergymen discuss a man's excommunication. A man on a road draws his sword as he approaches other men on horseback, who reach for their own weapons until the man kneels and pledges his support. A man is slapped across the face with a glove during a ceremony. Two men agree to settle a matter by fighting one-on-one. A husband talks to his wife about what she should do if he dies in a battle. A man yells, "The king will hang him for treason." A man reports to another man that, "Every man has been massacred" in a village. A man says, "Now we fight like wolves." A man tells his son to boil his body and carry his bones into battle after he dies. A man talks to his dying father about how he would never cry when his father beat him when he was a boy. ► We see a few severed heads on pikes with large birds pecking at them in a few scenes. A man is shown hanging by a rope around his neck in the distance. A dead man lies on the side of the road and we see blood on his face and body. A man dies as he expresses his regrets and we see a funeral with many mourners. A man's bare back has many old scars. A man collapses on his horse and dies in a bed later. A flaming vessel is launched by a trebuchet through the air and it crashes into a castle's wall leaving it in flames and crumbling. ► Bloody meat is chopped by a man with a hatchet in a market. A man holds up two dead swans as he yells ferociously about a forthcoming violent battle. A man jokes about someone "clutching his chamber pot." A man spits on the ground (we see spittle). A man spits in a well. A man blows his nose twice on the ground. - About 2 F-words, 3 sexual references, 1 scatological term, 2 anatomical terms, 7 mild obscenities, name-calling (prick, bastards, madman, martyr, sniveling fool, treacherous rebel, traitor, pitiful union, charade, tyrant, bloody beast, outlaws, mad cheeky wee (scatological term deleted)), exclamations (shut-up), 4 religious exclamations (e.g. God Willing, Godless, God, Fight For God). | profanity glossary | - Men are shown drinking from goblets after a ceremony, men and women drink at celebration after a wedding, men drink in a camp, and a man and woman drink wine and complain about its quality. - War between the English and Scotland in the 1300s, bravery, trust, regret, honor, murder, mercy, power, rebellion, counsel, torture, betrayal, death of loved ones, chivalry. - The urge to seek revenge may be the inspiration needed to fight with cunning.
